One cannot mention Ahlauyu's remarkable journey without acknowledging the profound influence of her father and teacher, the late Mr. R Venkatesan. Under his tutelage, Ahlauyu achieved the remarkable feat of becoming the only woman in India with the coveted qualification of LTCL. In 1993, she not only earned this prestigious title but also clinched the rolling trophy, 'Lady Papworth's Lyre,' a distinction that still stands unchallenged in the world of LTCL Classical Guitarists as a women.

After a brief stint of teaching in Singapore, Ahlauyu returned to India with a singular mission – to establish a Music Education Hub that would provide world-class musical instruction, on par with international standards. Her passion and dedication have since transformed countless young and old students, nurturing their musical talents and helping them achieve their dreams.

In a rapidly changing world, Ahlauyu S V Naiud remains at the forefront of music education. Since January 2020, she has trained and mentored an impressive cohort of 402 music teachers from across the globe.
